REMEMBER DECEMBER 7TH IS NATIONAL PEARL HARBOR REMEMBRANCE DAY

80 years ago, on 12/7/1941, 2,403 service members and civilians were killed during an attack on Pearl Harbor. A further 1,178 people were injured in this attack, which sank 2 US Navy battleships (USS Arizona and USS Utah) and destroyed 188 aircraft. The US entered WWII the next day. On 8/23/94, the US Congress designated December 7th as National Pearl Harbor Remembrance Day.

LEE POLICE DEPARTMENT NOTICE

Winter is soon upon us and the police department would like to remind everyone of the following:

Please Do Not park any vehicles upon any roadway in Town during a snowstorm as it impedes the Highway Department from doing their job. Also, please clear the snow from your vehicle before hitting the road!

Jessica's Law has been the law of NH for about fifteen (15) years now. It is a law that requires the clearing of ice and snow off the top of a vehicle prior to driving it. The basis of the law was a tragic accident that claimed the life of Jessica Smith in 1999.

The Town of Lee also has a Snow Casting Ordinance which was adopted on 1/7/2008. CLICK HERE.

The Lee Heritage Commission has created a series of historic marker plaques that are being awarded to the owners of historic properties in Lee who have successfully applied for New Hampshire State Register of Historic Places designation. The wording on each plaque states, "This Property is Placed on the State Register of Historic Places by the New Hampshire State Register of Historic Places".

Every time we share a photo of a historic property plaque presentation, we will also try to share some of the history of that property – and the families and/or organizations that have owned it. On October 30, 2021, the Heritage Commission had the honor of presenting the Lee Library trustees with a plaque that acknowledges the historic importance of the Lee Library to the State of New Hampshire and the Town of Lee.

Glidden House History:

The Glidden House was built in 1760 and was added onto in 1820 in the Greek Revival style. The Gliddens were a leading family in Wadleigh Falls (The Falls) area during this time. The Falls was a center of commerce with many mills and businesses. The Drake Stage Coach Line made daily trips between Northwood and Newmarket with its yellow coach and had a stop at the Falls. Wadleigh Falls was the location of the post office until the railroad came in 1874 and it was moved to South Lee by the railroad tracks. The Glidden House passed out of the ownership of the Glidden family around 1940. The Glidden House was placed on the New Hampshire Register of Historic Places on October 24, 2011.

We'll publish more photos of owners of Lee Historic Plaque properties accepting their plaques in the coming months, along with historic notes about their properties and the people who owned them.

TURKEY TIME By Catherine Fisher

Whether you feasted on turkey or tofu last week, if you're still dining on Thanksgiving leftovers this weekend, consider raising a glass to the resilience of the turkey - particularly the hen turkey. Though the displaying tom is Thanksgiving's poster boy (despite the fact that toms don't begin strutting around and fanning their great tails until early spring), other than passing on his DNA, a male turkey does nothing to ensure the continuation of the species. That job falls to the hen. The fossil record shows that turkeys have been present in the Americas at least five million years, proof that hen turkeys are very good at their work.

Each spring after mating, a female turkey chooses a secluded place in the forest, scratches a depression on the ground and over a one to two week period will lay between four to seventeen eggs. Then the weeks-long chore of brooding begins. Her plumage is less colorful and less iridescent and her wattles smaller than those of a tom - adaptations that allow her to blend in with the dead leaves covering the forest floor. Twenty-eight days later, her chicks begin the hard work of emergence. This is a dangerous period for both the hen and her chicks - until her brood is hatched and able to move, all are extremely vulnerable to predation. To get quickly past this precarious time, the hen uses vocalizations to stimulate her chicks. When her chicks begin pipping (egg-cracking) and the first chicks begin to peep inside their eggs, the hen makes a single "hatching call", letting them all know it's time to break out of their shell. Thereafter, she makes periodic, encouraging "hatching hoots" and continues to do so until the final chick emerges.

Like all land fowl, turkeys are precocial- well developed and ready to walk soon after hatching. They are also nidifugous - once they've rested from the labors of hatching they leave the nest, never to return. As soon as they're ready, their mother leads them away to begin the nomadic life of a wild turkey. From now until fall or next spring, depending upon their gender, the chicks will follow her and learn what to eat and where to find it, when to stand perfectly still, when to run and hide, when to fly, how to take a dust bath, what vocalizations to make and when, and where to roost.

Their mother keeps a constant watch for danger and she's well-equipped to do so. Those big eyes pictured here in Andrea LeBlanc's wonderful photo can see better than just about any other vertebrate on the planet. As opposed to the 1 rod and 3 cones that make up the sum total of the types of photoreceptors in a human eye, turkeys have 1 rod and 6 different types of cones, one of which can see UV light. All those cones give turkeys superb color vision. Add to this an ultra-flexible neck that can rotate 360° and you have a bird that's very difficult to sneak up on.

Turkey chicks grow quickly. At 3 days old, they follow their mother in a feeding line. Insects and other invertebrates, revealed as their mother scratches away the leaf litter, make up all of their food for their first 4 or 5 weeks, after that seeds become an important part of their diet. By nine days old, they can fly a few meters, by 10 days old they can fly up into trees and they can swim. When fall arrives they begin eating acorns.

During the course of the summer, hen turkeys and their broods often join forces with other hens and their broods. If one pair of sharp maternal eyes is good then two or more is an almost insurmountable defense against a sneak attack. By autumn, the young toms, now as big as their mothers, leave the flock and form all-male flocks of their own. The female poults remain with their mothers in flocks that sometimes number more than 200 individuals. Together these great girl bands roam the landscape, finding food throughout the winter, and snuggling together in large hemlock roosts at night. By the time spring arrives and the yearling hens are ready to breed, their mothers and "aunts" will have shown them all the resources and dangers that the landscape holds, leaving them well prepared to raise another generation.

One Bin at a Time – The Consolidated e-Book

Talking trash with Jen Messeder, LSC member

Greetings, fellow recyclers! The Sustainability Committee has a couple of announcements this week. First, you've no doubt noticed some changes at the Transfer Station. The obvious change is that the divided bin (office paper and magazines) has been recombined back to mixed paper. A less obvious change is the financial information that is posted at the bins to let us know how much we earn (or pay) to recycle our recyclables. The pandemic has raised the demand for recycled material across the board and the paper market is especially hot. Now more than ever, it pays to recycle! The second announcement is that we've updated the One Bin electronic book to reflect these changes and posted it on the Sustainability Committee's page on the town's website in place of the old version – <https://www.leenh.org/sustainability-committee> (left side, One Bin at a Time button). We hope it will serve as an ongoing resource for the community and we will continue to keep it up to date as things change.

Tree Location: 46 Lamprey Lane
Deciduous or Conifer: Deciduous Species: Yellow Maple

Entry Category: Then and Now

Upper Right: Two Maples 2018

Lower Right: Felling Fall 2020

Comments: Our home was built in 1985 and the construction left no shade trees for the south side of the house. I transplanted two small yellow maples (@ 7 ft. each) in 1995 and they grew to become very nice shade trees. In the spring of 2020, a strong thunderstorm twisted off the whole side of one of the trees. In the fall of that year we had Jon Roy take down the rest of the tree. Since our vegetable garden is in that spot, it is unlikely that we will replace the tree that was lost; however, we still have the other one.

OYSTER RIVER COOPERATIVE SCHOOL DISTRICT NEWS – 12-01-2021

As NH experiences unprecedented rates of COVID-19 infections, Oyster River schools have also seen the highest numbers of students and staff of the whole pandemic who are staying home due to infection, symptoms, or possible exposure. Thank you to the many families who are working with school nurses to avoid potential exposure of others at school. If your student is symptomatic, even if you're sure it's not COVID-19, please contact the school before sending your student. Schools may be able to help with testing for families that are not able to obtain timely tests elsewhere.

Schools will continue to operate in-person as long as staffing levels allow it. Should circumstances require it, it is expected that one class or team may temporarily move remote, not an entire school.

Oyster River High School will be the site for a second vaccination clinic for ages 5-12 on December 11th in partnership with McGregor Ambulance and Strafford County Public Health Network. Details will be sent to families as they are finalized.

The School Board also advanced a proposed 2022-2023 budget to the public budget hearing. The proposed budget includes new positions supporting students and teachers in areas of elementary math and science, middle school academic tutoring, diversity and inclusion, and high school writing coaching. The public hearing on the budget is scheduled for January 11, 2022.
