LEE HISTORICAL SOCIETY MUSEUM

Open Saturday, May 21st 10:00 am – 2:00 pm

Don't let the new porch construction scare you, just use the ramp and come in the side door!

Inside you will find a completely new floor plan and several brand new exhibits that tell stories of the history of Lee. Bring the kids to the popular upstairs exhibits, Children's Toys and the One Room School. What was life like before Mast Way School was built in 1960? Come see! Our student docents will be there to give lessons straight out of the early schoolbooks, as the children sit in original desks. They will also help children with hands on activities like stamping hieroglyphics and alphabets, and writing with quills and dip pens. Did you make a paper cup or tin can "phone" as a child? Your children can do that here, and learn about the original telephones used in Lee homes. Whether you've been here before or have yet to visit the museum, you will find new and exciting exhibits and activities. We look forward to seeing you!

Local Artisans Shine:
'Made in Lee Artisans Fair'
and the Upcoming Online Artisan Directory
by Paul Gasowski, LSC

Saturday, May 7th was a great day in Lee! Between the Fishing Derby and Fish Fry, the opening day of ORYA baseball, and the 'Made in Lee Artisan Fair,' there was plenty of 'community' happening. At the artisan fair, over 18 Lee Artisans were busy all day, greeting a steady stream of visitors, showing their wares, sharing their expertise, and making friends with happy shoppers.

The event, which was organized by Sandi Jenkins and the Lee Sustainability Committee, was co-sponsored by the Lee Public Library. Additional support came from the Oyster River Cooperative School District Facilities Department, the Mast Way School and Principal Misty Lowe, the Town of Lee, the Lee Police, the Lee Recreation Commission, the Oyster River Youth Association, and the Lee Church Congregational (parking). A very special mention is in order for John and Anthony Shea for their daylong assistance with setup and cleanup.

What's next? Well, we are hoping to jointly explore ideas for future artisan fairs. In addition, the Lee Sustainability Committee is creating (and about to launch) an Online Directory of Lee Artisans and Craftspeople. Want to be listed in the directory? Please contact: sustain@leenh.org for more details. Local Lee!

SPRING AZURE: A BRIEF, GORGEOUS LIFE

By Catherine Fisher, Conservation Commission

Photographs by Andrea LeBlanc

With the mourning cloak, the spring azure (Celastrina ladon) is one of the first butterflies seen in spring. Unlike the much larger mourning cloak, which hibernates as an adult, the spring azure overwinters in its pupal form, spending the freezing months snug within its chrysalis. Usually emerging in late April to early May, its brilliant blue wings, described by Robert Frost as “sky flakes”, are a joy to behold.

The spring azure belongs to the Lycaenidae family which encompasses blues, coppers, harvesters and hairstreaks. Lycaenidae are commonly referred to as “gossamer-winged” butterflies, a name deriving from their shimmery, delicate wings. Like all Lycaenidae, the spring azure is a small (.75 - 1.75 inch wingspan), dainty butterfly, brilliantly iridescent, with eyes located at the base of and wrapping slightly around its black and white banded antennae. Male and females are of similar size and color with males, such as the one in Andrea’s photograph, having a narrow black band along the upper wing margin; females have a black margin that is much broader. The underwings of both males and females are silvery gray with brown/black markings.

The spring azure begins its life as one of a cluster of eggs laid on a woody food plant such as maple leaf viburnum, members of the dogwood family, and blueberry. The tiny, flat, slug-shaped caterpillars hatch within eight days. As is the case with most Lycaenidae butterfly species, the larva has a mutualistic relationship with a number of ant species and is tended by ants who feed on the larva’s sugary secretions and in return protect it from predators and parasites. This is fortunate for the larva, for, true to its appearance, it is slow and sluggish by nature, and doesn’t move far from its hatching site.

Within a month or so after hatching, the larva has reached pupation stage and spins its chrysalis. In most cases, this occurs in June or early July, which means this larva spends a whopping 10-11 months as a pupa before its emergence in April or May. Almost immediately the newly emerged butterfly, if it is a male, begins patrolling along forest edges and trails searching for females. Newly emerged females often mate within hours after leaving their chrysalises. Aside from a quick sip of nectar or puddling for salts, spring azures don’t do much feeding. Time is critical. Gossamer-winged butterflies are short-lived, often living but a few weeks. The spring azure doesn’t have that kind of time - as an adult it lives no more than four or five days and is, perhaps, Earth’s shortest-lived butterfly. From the time of hatching until the end of its life, it spends little more than five weeks moving free, four weeks as a caterpillar and five days as a butterfly. The rest of its scant year is spent inside the shell of an egg or the confines of a chrysalis.

Emergence will be staggered over the next several weeks, so this is the time to get out and look for these small beauties. I almost always see spring azures along the power line right of way behind the library. A favorite perching area for males seems to be where the trail dips down towards the bog and is flanked by juniper and sweet fern. The abundance of blueberry bushes along the trails, and the nearby forest makes this location a prime spring azure habitat. So head out there and enjoy these lovely sky flakes.

Blue-Butterfly Day

*It is blue-butterfly day here in spring,
And with these sky-flakes down in flurry on flurry
There is more unmixed color on the wing
Than flowers will show for days unless they hurry.*

*But these are flowers that fly and all but sing:
And now from having ridden out desire
They lie closed over in the wind and cling
Where wheels have freshly sliced the April mire.*

*Robert Frost
1923*

SCHOOL BOARD NEWS – MAY 18, 2022

Six teachers are retiring from Oyster River Schools at the end of this school year. The School Board thanks and recognizes Pam Felber, Kate Ameduri, and Whitney Burke at Mast Way; Susan Jackson at ORMS; and Mary Beaton and Esther Ott at ORHS. These teachers have a combined 129 years of service to Oyster River students and the school community.

Robotics teams from Oyster River Middle School and Oyster River High School shared their 2022 seasons success with the School Board. ORMS fielded 15 teams made up of 56 students from grades 6, 7, and 8 in the VEX IQ robotics program this year. Advisors Jon Silverio and Jason Duff along with 7 team members shared their experiences, including 3 teams that participated at the World Championship in Dallas. The VEX IQ program is finishing its 4th competition season at ORMS. The ORHS FIRST Robotics team wrapped up its first competition season since the team was founded in 2020. Lead advisor Michael Hawley and 4 team members shared their experience with fundraising, teambuilding, and community outreach in addition to designing and operating their robot.

Coronavirus infections and exposures continue to affect school operations. As of May 18th, 41 district staff and 147 students are out of school due to COVID-19 infections. An additional 213 students and staff are quarantined. Staff across the district have been exceptionally flexible in covering needs from transportation to school nutrition and classrooms while staff recover in order to keep all schools open and operating. The School District thanks parents and students for their patience, flexibility, and cooperation as temporary adjustments to bus routes, concerts and events, and state testing have occurred in response to the number of students and staff out.

The remaining school board meetings for this school year are June 1st, June 8th and June 15th. June 8th is a school board workshop on communication, which is a public meeting, but with a limited agenda. The school board will not take any actions or votes. Workshop meetings are generally not televised and do not include public comments. The public is always invited to provide input by email to orcsdsb@orcsd.org.

MOHARIMET SCHOOL IS LOOKING FOR COMMUNITY HELP

The Moharimet community is looking for people to lead or co-lead small groups during our Day of the Artist celebration on June 2nd. They hope to offer a wide range of artistic experiences for the students to enjoy through small-group sessions throughout the day. The goal is for children to feel what it's like to create art or express themselves artistically. The emphasis will be on fun and learning and not on the perfection of the finished product.

Past celebrations have included sessions on: coil clay pots, watercolor painting, whittling, soap carving, potato stamp making, origami, and drumming. High-level experience from group leaders is not necessary, but a desire to help children in your community learn is a definite plus. If you've ever wanted to share your love of art, here is your chance.

Interested in participating? Please contact the Moharimet front office (603)742-2900 and be prepared to give: your name, contact information, a description of the art you would like to share, grade levels most likely to benefit from your program, size of group you would be able to accommodate AND your hours of availability during the Day of the Artist.

What is the Plant A Row Program?

During the pandemic and beyond, more Granite staters are facing food insecurity. Most significantly, access to fresh and healthy, local produce.

Plant A Row is a neighbors-helping-neighbors initiative, organized through 4-H and UNH Cooperative Extension in Strafford and Rockingham County.

The idea behind this effort is simple: Planting an extra row in your garden or an extra container and donating the produce from it to a participating food pantry or a neighbor in need will directly benefit local food pantries and their patrons to get access to fresh and local produce, and overall healthier choices.

When people sign up to plant an extra row, they will be provided with a garden kit (fabric garden, row marker, sticker and colorful tote bag), growing tips, activities, recipes, and other resources.

Participation is open to all ages, and participants don't need to be 4-H members to sign up. Participation in this program is free.
