Join us on Saturday, September 18 from 1-3pm for an educational workshop focused on techniques for finding, collecting, and identifying insects on your property. USFS Entomologist Marc DiGirolomo will demonstrate several collection techniques as we explore a variety of habitat types and discuss the insects that make their home at Little River Park in Lee, NH. Pinned insect specimens will also be on display showcasing some of New Hampshire's diverse insect populations. The workshop will involve an easy walk through the trails and habitats of Little River Park and the adjacent Mills Reserve.

Marc is an entomologist with the USDA Forest Service's Forest Health Protection group in Durham, NH serving all of New England and New York. Marc specializes in the detection, monitoring, and identification of forest insect pests, with an emphasis on woodboring and bark beetles.

This walk is being held as part of the 2021 NH BioBlitz, an effort to get community members out exploring species on town-owned lands all over New Hampshire during the month of September. Attendees are invited to participate in the BioBlitz effort by submitting their insect species observations to iNaturalist. To learn more about the NH BioBlitz, visit extension.unh.edu/nhbioblitz.

Conservation Commission Easement Monitoring Notes from 8-4-2021

Two weeks ago, members of the Conservation Commission monitored the Ellis Oyster River Reserve, a 14 acre parcel bounded by 155A to the north, the Durham town line to the east, and Route 4 to the south. Transected by the Oyster River, this forested property has, relative to its size, considerable river frontage along with some impressively steep embankments.

Using the remnants of a loop trail that has fallen into disuse, we walked west of the river, pausing now and then to admire its current which, for early August, was running high and fast. An otter had left its tracks along a muddy stretch of shore and an eastern wood pewee called throughout the duration of our walk. Still moist from July's heavy rains, logs and stumps were velvety and emerald green with moss. It was the continuing fungi show that really grabbed our attention, however. Mushrooms were everywhere - an impressive array of shapes, sizes and colors. Perhaps most lovely were the yellow-orange fly agaric mushrooms, Amanita muscaria var. formosa.

Yellow-orange fly agaric is common to Northeastern U.S. and often encountered in NH. It is mycorrhizal with certain hardwood and conifer tree species. Ninety-five percent of all plants on earth form symbiotic partnerships with mycorrhizal fungi. In mycorrhizal symbiosis, a fungus attaches its filaments to the roots of its plant partner, becoming in effect extensions of those roots. These filaments help the plant to more efficiently absorb water and nutrients. In return, the fungus is fed sugars manufactured by its plant partner.

With its brilliant yellow or orange cap flecked with small white patches that look like melted parmesan cheese, yellow-orange fly agaric is one of the easier mushrooms to identify. The white bits on its cap are the shredded remnants of the mushroom's universal veil. Completely enshrouding the embryonic fruiting body, the universal veil protects the developing mushroom as it grows under the soil. Once the mushroom matures and breaks through the soil surface, the veil is stretched and shattered. The gills of the embryonic mushroom have their own protective covering, the partial veil, remnants of which form a ring around the stem of the mature mushroom.

Like many members of the Amanita genus, yellow-orange fly agaric is toxic, though only moderately so compared to other members of its tribe. The "fly" part of its common name dates from antiquity and refers to its use as a house fly insecticide. Dried, often powdered, bits of the mushroom were placed in a bowl or saucer of milk which was then set out to draw in flies. Imbibing the agaric-infused liquid had an adverse effect on the flies' nervous system, impairing their flight abilities and thus making them more easily swattable.

CONSERVATION MONITORING IN LEE

From now until early fall, join the Conservation Commission on Wednesday mornings as they conduct site walks on the Town's conserved properties. Some of these lands are owned by the Town, but most of them are privately owned and protected in perpetuity with a conservation easement. If you'd like to walk along, go to https://www.leenh.org/conservation-commission and email the Conservation Commission Chair Dawn Genes by clicking on her name. Monitoring begins at 9:00 am and generally takes 1½-2 hrs. Most outings require traversing through thick brush. Standard precautions for COVID, ticks & mosquitoes are advised.

LEE TRAILS COMMITTEE UPDATE

The Lee Trails Committee has been busy this summer - it's all about collaborations!

Have you seen the new benches in the Town Forest? Those were made by middle school students from Camp REACH sponsored by Durham Parks and Recreation. The Trails Committee helped campers learn to clip and clear brush, make rock steps across a stream and build two Aldo Leopold benches. The campers cleared spots for the benches and carried them out in the pouring rain. They were very proud of their work!

If you're walking by the bog on the orange trail, you'll see one bench that overlooks the bog. The other bench is next to the old dam on the white trail where you can enjoy looking at the pond and stream. Many thanks to the campers for their hard work so we can sit and enjoy the scenery. For more information about Camp REACH, contact Rachel Gasowski at rgasowski@ci.durham.nh.us.

Have you been on the "Trail Tales" on the Forest Loop Trail in Little River Park? The library received a grant to put stories along the trail and the Trails Committee prepared the sites and placed the story boards. The project was made possible in part by the Institute of Museum and Library Services and the New Hampshire State Library.

The response to the Trail Tales has been good: Haley McComiskey (pictured below), daughter of Paul McComisky, walked the trail with her dad and loved "reading" the colorful stories along the way. Paul was in charge of the project, with help from additional Trails Committee volunteers, Leslie Chinburg and Martin Thornton.

REMINDER THAT 10-DIGIT DIALING STARTS OCTOBER 24, 2021

Effective October 24, 2021, MANDATORY 10-digit local dialing is required for all customers in the NH 603 Area Code. Why is the local dialing plan changing? On July 16, 2020, the FCC adopted an Order (FCC 20-100) approving 988 as the 3-digit abbreviated dialing code to reach the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline, starting July 16, 2022. Customers must continue to dial 1-800-273-TALK (8255) to reach the Lifeline until July 16, 2022. The Order requires all telecommunications carriers, interconnected Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP) providers, and one-way VoIP providers (covered providers) to make any network changes necessary to ensure that users can dial 988 to reach the existing National Suicide Prevention Lifeline by July 16, 2022.

For 988 to work in the NH 603 area code, 10-digit local dialing must first be implemented.

Does this apply to NH? Yes. Implementation of this Order requires all covered providers to make 10-digit dialing mandatory for all local calls in the entire NH 603 area code.

Why is 10-digit dialing going to be required in this area code? The FCC ordered that any area code that has the 988 prefix and has 7-digit local dialing be transitioned to 10-digit local dialing to ensure everyone is able to reach the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline using the 3-digit 988 code.

Will everyone in the 603 area code have to dial 10 digits for local calls? Yes. Every customer with a number from the 603 area code will change to mandatory 10-digit dialing for local calls. Dialing 7 digits for local calls will be prohibited for all customers in the entire area code.

What will be the new dialing procedure? To complete local calls, the new dialing procedure requires callers to dial the area code + telephone number. This means that all local calls in the entire 603 area code that are currently dialed with 7 digits will need to be dialed using the area code + telephone number.

When will the dialing change begin? Beginning April 24, 2021, you should start dialing 10 digits (area code + telephone number) for all local calls. If you forget and dial just 7 digits, your call will still be completed.
